IPA Sierra Leone presents to the World Health Organization on "Health Behavior: (Some of) What We Know Through Rigorous Evaluations"

The World Health Organization (WHO) hosted IPA Sierra Leone's Country Director, Osman Siddiqi, for a brown bag session on evidence from randomized controlled trials in health. The presentation had three main sections including why we should randomize, case studies and a summary of the health program policy brief, and a discussion on big questions for Sierra Leone.

The event was attended by representatives from the Ministry of Health & Sanitation, WHO, the private sector, and NGO representatives.
