In India, a Small Pill, With Positive Side Effects

Deworm the World was featured in the New York Times Opinionator Blog for their success in deworming in India. An excerpt:

"Deworming programs require surveillance, monitoring and evaluation, training of health workers and teachers, and education about sanitation and hygiene, as well as worms. Coordination in India was spearheaded by a global campaign called Deworm the World...For a year and a half, Deworm the World lobbied government officials in Delhi to get approvals and plan the campaign. In Bihar, it took less than a year of talks and planning to introduce the state's deworming campaign."
