

Authors

Dean Karlan
Northwestern University

Christopher Udry
Northwestern University

File(s)

ghanatailors_February2014_v11.pdf

Consulting and Capital Experiments with Micro and Small Tailoring Enterprises in Ghana

We conduct a randomized evaluation in urban Ghana in which micro and small tailoring enterprises receive advice from an international consulting firm, cash, both, or neither. We find that all three treatments lead to their immediate intended effects: changed business practices and higher investment. However, both treatments lead to lower profits on average in the short term. Then, in the long run, the micro-entrepreneurs in the treatment group disinvest relative to those in the control group, and revert back to their prior scale of operations and business practices.

March 11, 2015